Why Newspaper Advertising

Though marketing has changed dramatically since the advent of the internet, social media, online SEO and lead generation, experts still agree there are plenty of reasons to dedicate your marketing dollars to local print newspapers.

Here's why:

TARGETED MARKETS

Print publications tend to serve specific geographic areas or specific consumer groups. Newspapers, for example, usually cater to specific cities and their surrounding areas. This makes a newspaper an ideal advertising medium for a business that provides services, as the customers most likely to use the business' services probably live within the circulation area of the paper.

READER ENGAGEMENT

When watching television or surfing the web, people often multi-task, meaning their attention is divided. Newspaper readers actively and intentionally engage with the material on the page, including the advertisements. A survey conducted by the Newspaper Association of America found that 79 percent of readers took some action after viewing print advertisements.

CREDIBILITY

Newspaper publications often command a sense of genuine credibility. Readers trust the information these publications offer. The advertisers in the publication reap the benefits of this "halo-effect" trust. Readers believe the advertising in the publication to be more credible by virtue of simply appearing in a trustworthy publication, like a local newspaper.

CONTROL

Print advertising gives the ad buyer considerable control. Ad buyers choose the size and, within editorial guidelines, dictate the content of the advertisement. They even have control over the placement of the advertisement. For example, a restaurant might ask that their early bird special ad appear in the Senior Life section of a newspaper. This helps the buyer ensure their ad reaches the readers most likely to act on it.

VISUAL APPEAL

A well-designed advertisement creates visual appeal that draws attention. Readers may pause to look at the ad, or even return to look at it a second time. The longer, or more times, the reader looks at the ad, the greater the chances of the reader remembering the product or service in the advertisement.

Hometown Weekly Newspapers

The Hometown Weekly Newspapers

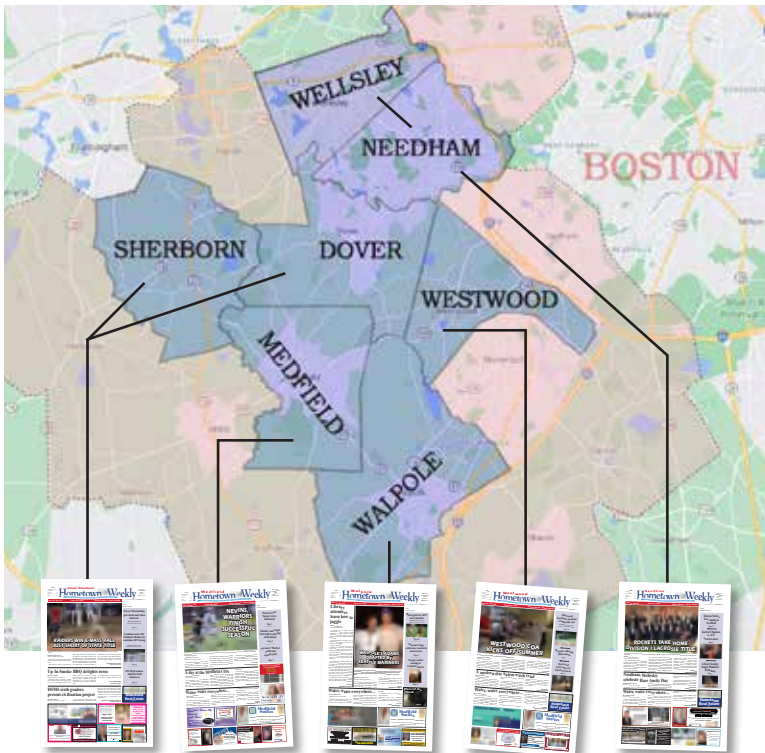

The Hometown Weekly Newspapers began publishing in 1997 with a goal to bring community information to every home and business in its towns. Today, the Hometown Weekly is directly mailed and retail distributed to over 33,000 homes, businesses and retail locations in the affluent suburbs of Boston: Medfield, Walpole, Westwood, Dover, Sherborn, Needham and Wellesley. Our direct mailed newspapers are delivered to readers' mailboxes every Thursday. Our newspaper's ad campaigns can work synergistically with our website, online advertising and social media programs.

Local News Stories and Community Information

Each issue features stories by local writers, along with valuable information from many of the town's organizations, community leaders and businesses. We feature community activities, weddings, anniversaries, obituaries, student news, school sports highlights, pet adoption, classifieds and services, help wanted and more. We make every attempt to publish as much town-specific, community-related information as possible.
